

"A Short History of Anti-Asian Violence in the US, and Why It Matters Today"

Lecture/Workshop by
Dr. Pranav Jani
(Director of Asian American Studies at The Ohio State University)

In this lecture and workshop, Dr. Pranav Jani will cover the history of anti-Asian violence in the US, with an emphasis on transnational contexts and diversity within Asian groups, and attention to Asian racialization in relation to Black, Indigenous, and Latinx peoples. The question-and-answer session will also include a joint conversation on achievements, obstacles, and debates when organizing A/API faculty and students and our links to BIPOC communities on and off campus. Dr. Jani is Director of Asian American Studies at Ohio State, a scholar in postcolonial studies, president of AAUP-Oet
