Parampreet Singh introduced and read the resolution.

Discussion:

King: How will this change affect the length of the terms; the junior Member-at-Large will start a month late.

Singh: The new Member-at-Large will serve a one-year term as do the other members of FSEC; the term for this Member will conclude in October or by the second FS meeting, whichever comes first.

Scott Baldrige: Given the confusion this past session, is ther

Sarah Rosser pointed out that fulltime English instructors now earn only $10,000 more than the new graduate minimum stipend and asked if the provost administration had considered that disparity. Haggerty:

Meredith Veldman: The new budgeting model is based on reallocation which means some areas will lose humanities are anxious. What does the new budgeting model mean for them? The elimination of departments? Haggerty: A faculty group will recommend the metric by which to assess unit needs (e.g. student credit hours, # of majors, # of degrees awarded, research grants, research dollars, per faculty in a dept; job market for graduates). At this point, not thinking about changes in units.

Pam Blanchard: The College of Education has 15 empty faculty positions as a result of those lines being artments; as a result, the college is under threat. Need to consider more than the numbers. Haggerty: Faculty Group will advise him on qualitative components as well.

The provost closed his presentation by thanking the faculty for asking the necessary hard questions.

The meeting adjourned at 4:38 pm.
