Ashley Collins, Graduate School

Emily Hatfield, Academic Affairs

Tricia Cobb, Faculty Senate

President Joshua Duplechain recognized Senators for their Dedication and Service and for those who fulfilled their terms of office. Chairs, Co-Chairs, and Liaisons on Committees during this past year were also mentioned. Duplechain also presented the President's Attendance Award to Senators who had perfect attendance to all of the Staff Senate meetings for the year.

President Joshua Duplechain announced that the LSU Outstanding New Senator Award, chosen by the Staff Senate Executive Committee, in recognition of a new member of the LSU Staff Senate who has provided outstanding service to the Senate for the 2023-2024 Senate year was being presented to Senator Bradley Waters.

President Joshua Duplechain announced that the LSU Staff Senator Service Award, chosen by the Staff Senate Executive Committee, in recognition of an individual member of the LSU Staff Senate who provided outstanding service to the Senate for the 2023-2024 year, was being presented to Senators Anthony Oster, Kevin Breaux, and Anissa Mimms.

President Joshua Duplechain also presented the President's Parachute Award to Senator Amanda Ferguson for jumping right in as a Staff Senator during 2023-2024.

Introduction of Elected Senators

President Joshua Duplechain announced the newly elected Staff Senators who were chosen to serve on started by my predecessors; helping to find funding to make our appreciation events bigger and better than the year before; attending virtually every meeting I was invited to; etc.

I hasten to add that I don't want that to come across as anything other than what it was for me, which was an honor to be your voice and represent the nearly 4,000 staff on our campus on a daily basis. I got to meet people I probably never would have otherwise on campus, speak up for those who can't speak for themselves, and celebrate our staff's milestones and achievements with them. I got to hear from people about their own issues with mental illness after sharing my bouts of anxiety and depression in a past newsletter. I got to experience the richness that is our staff—people who have been here for six days or, in the case of one remarkable man, 60 years; people with wildly different backgrounds who arrived at this campus either on a whim or because their love for it started at a young age and never left them; and people who have experienced their own personal highs and lows but still show up to work with a brave face.

Because of all of those people, it was important that Staff Senate be successful in its mission and goals this year. And thanks to support from people like President Tate, Provost Haggerty, Vice Provosts Jane Cassidy and Jackie Bach, Dr. Kimberly Lewis, our Staff Senate Executive Committee, all of you, our friends in Auxiliary and Facility Services, our friends in Faculty Senate—especially Inessa Bazayev and Daniel Tirone—Emily Hatfield in the Provost's Office who is with us, and the irreplaceable Melonie Milton, Staff Senate was.

Think about what was accomplished this year for staff—a new parental leave policy; passage of a retirement bill in the legislature that will allow staff to switch from ORP to the defined benefit plan; staff representation on key hiring and advisory committees; and I believe good news is imminent on the waiving of fees for employees enrolled in courses, as well as 100% tuition remission for employees enrolled in online courses.

That's a damn good year.

Along the way, I leaned on last year's president, Tammy Millican, for advice, encouragement, affirmation, counseling, etc., and she never said she didn't have time for me or couldn't be there for me. If I had any measure of success as president this year, it is in no small part thanks to her.

And then there's my wife, Christie. She was extremely patient with me this last year to say the least. Listening to me answering emails and phone calls at all hours of the day and night about Staff Senate issues, including in line at Disney World; seeing me anxious to the point of immobility over an important meeting or from fear that something I wanted to accomplish wouldn't come to fruition; or, being that she's also a staff member on this campus, having to read my awful one-liners in my president's address each month; she put up with it all, and I'm so grateful to her and for her.

I also want to thank my deans, Judy Wornat and Karsten Thompson, for giving me the latitude to do both my day job and be away from the office for Staff Senate responsibilities. All of this would have been a non-starter without their understanding.

And lastly, I want to thank my staff—Libby Haydel, Casey Muller, and Eddie Manes—for picking up my slack and keeping the lights on while I was away. I'm sorry, but now you have my full attention, and I will micromanage you thusly.

Thank you to every single one of you here today. I hope I did okay by you.”

President Joshua Duplechain officially passed the gavel to President-Elect Olivia Phelps.
