
FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS (FAQS)

W a a ac ca a?

Veterinary clinical trials are research studies conducted to evaluate the safety and e□ectiveness of new treatments or medications in animals.

W dlc d a c ca a?

Clinical trials can provide access to new treatments that may be more e□ective than existing options, especially if other treatments have failed.

H d l da a c ca a ?

Your veterinarian may be aware of ongoing trials, or you can search our online database.

W a a b c a a c a ac ca a?

Eligibility criteria vary by study and may include factors such as species, breed, age, medical condition, and previous treatments.

W a ca l c d c ca a c ?

You will receive detailed information about the trial's procedures, including the treatment plan, duration, required visits, and any potential risks or benefits.

A a a d a c ca a?

While all e□orts are made to ensure safety, there may be risks, such as side e□ects from new treatments. These will be explained to you before you consent to participate.

W c a da d ca d a?

With each trial, the research team conducting the trial will provide all details of care provided and guidance on the specific trial of interest.

I ac a c a ac ca a?

Costs may vary; some trials cover treatment expenses entirely, while others may o□er partial subsidies. This information will be provided during the enrollment process.

W a a a a d ' ?

Your pet's health and well-being are the top priorities. If the trial treatment is not e□ective, alternative treatments will be discussed, and standard care will continue.