Saving the Whole Family helps meet the needs of animals and the veterinary community before, during and after disasters. Saving the Whole Family also educates pet owners on developing emergency preparedness plans for their pets.

Disaster can strike at any time with sometimes little and many times no notice.

Veterinarians, the ultimate animal care providers, must be prepared to deal with a variety of animal health situations on a daily basis. Due to the frequency and unpredictability of natural disasters, emergency medical training and preparedness are key components of veterinary education.

Core to the AVMF's mission is to support the health, well-being and compassionate medical care of animals. Caring for animals in need is one of the most rewarding opportunities for veterinarians. In 2005, the AVMF created the Animal Disaster Relief and Response Fund (ADRR) to provide nancial assistance and animal medical care in times of disasters such as earthquakes, hurricanes, wild res and tornadoes. We provide reimbursement and relief for veterinarians who care for the animal victims of disaster and for the restoration of veterinary infrastructure affected by disaster.

Grants are provided for immediate disaster needs, and to help provide training, disaster preparedness and response planning. There are many ways you can play a part in supporting these efforts.

To ensure a continued level of excellence in the face of tragedy, AVMF needs your help:

The AVMF provides several grants each year to veterinarians, The Veterinary Medical Assistance Team (VMAT) program, and national organizations for reimbursement, relief, disaster planning, training, and response efforts. We are committed to raising funds to go directly towards the Animal Disaster Relief and Response efforts.

If you would like to contribute to these efforts, visit a f. de a e or mail checks to
